JANE MANSBRIDGE: Today we're going to do the usual. I'm going to give you an overview. Then we'll plunge right into the theory of justice. Then we'll do some applications to democracy, a recap. The themes of the course, I don't think we're going to have time for, or maybe we will. I'll probably just end up putting that on the website. I think by now you're very used to that.

And then I'll say what to look for in Foucault. Foucault is on the hard side, not because the words, individual words are hard to read, but after you've read the individual words, you might not know what he's talking about. In which case, don't worry about it. Go with the flow. Do the best you can, and we'll make sense of it in class.
